Open discussion on all topics

FORMAT:

- Tuesdays, 8:00-9:30 A.M.
- Lecture by presenter - 55 minutes
- Questions and open discussion - 30 minutes
- All three presenters for each topic are asked to be present to dialogue when possible.

TEXTBOOKS:

PAPERS: A reflection paper is due from all students at the end of each of the topics. This is not a formal research paper but is instead based upon the materials presented in class, selected readings and his/her personal reflections. Papers should range in length from 3 to 5 pages and include a reference list written in APA style.

READING: Each faculty presenter will suggest several pertinent references which will assist the student reflecting on the subjects presented. Students are expected to read materials related to the topics presented in the lectures. A reading log should be kept showing the books read and the cumulative number of pages. Since this a one-half credit course, the reading requirement is 1000 pages. Books suggested by each lecturer are, whenever possible, available on reserve shelves. Students should pay particular attention to reading in areas with which they have less familiarity.
BIBLIOGRAPHY OF SUGGESTED READING

NATURE OF PERSONHOOD

JANUARY 27TH: DR. ROYCE GREUNLER

FEBRUARY 3RD: DR. WILLIAM SPENCER
Hughes, Philip E. (1989). The true image: The origin and the destiny of man in Christ. Grand Rapids: Eerdmans. [following the redemptive drama of integration-disintegration-reintegration, the late Professor Hughes, a noted New Testament scholar provides an immensely helpful Reformed view anthropological perspective.]
Hui, Edwin C. (2002). At the beginning of life: Dilemmas in theological bioethics. Downers Grove: InterVarsity Press. [combining his expertise in both theology and the medical sciences, Hui provides a cutting-edge argument on a number of key issues in medical ethics and theological anthropology in general.]

FEBRUARY 10TH: DR. PABLO POLISCHUK
Bube, R. (1995). Putting it all together: Seven patterns for relating science and the Christian faith. Maryland: University of America, Inc.
