Please tell us more about your role at Gordon-Conwell and how long you’ve been employed by the seminary.

I currently serve as the Manager of Support Services and have worked for Gordon-Conwell since 2013.

How did God weave together your Gordon-Conwell education with other life events to bring you back to here to the seminary? How did you come to be serving in your current position?

While studying at Gordon-Conwell I met my wife Elizabeth, who was working on staff at the seminary. We were married the summer following my graduation and God called us to remain in the area while I served in bivocational pastoral ministry. I applied to several jobs in the area, but none of them seemed to be a good fit. We were grateful when David Shorey offered me a position as his assistant in Support Services at Gordon-Conwell. It was such a blessing to work with him for the next nine years. After David retired, I stepped into the role of manager.

What are some things you love about your work?

The best part of my job is getting to stay connected to the Gordon-Conwell community. I love talking with students throughout the day, reconnecting with alumni at conferences and events on campus, and serving together with an amazing team of faculty and staff who love Jesus and seek to follow Him.

What’s unique about working at Gordon-Conwell?

At Gordon-Conwell, the lines between work and worship are beautifully blurred. We worship together as a community in Chapel and extend our worship together into our offices and classrooms.

How has working in a multidenominational setting shaped your own faith, ministry, or view of the Church as a whole?

Working at Gordon-Conwell has helped me better understand and appreciate the breadth of a body of Christ comprised of believers from every nation, tribe, and tongue. Through regular engagement with faithful believers from diverse backgrounds, I am better equipped to pastor with greater sensitivity, humility, and nuance.

How has your own Gordon-Conwell education influenced your work or impacted the way you engage in your role?

My Gordon-Conwell education has made me a better follower of Christ. That impacts every area of life, not just vocational ministry, and has made me a better employee and coworker than I would be otherwise.
